- A map of Tytsjerk, a village in the Netherlands, showing its layout and surrounding features. The village is depicted with orange and red buildings, green fields, and blue water bodies. A railway line runs diagonally through the center. Three specific locations are marked with blue circles containing numbers: 1, 2, and 3. A list on the right side of the map identifies these locations. The map also shows various roads, including 'Rijksweg' and 'Zomerweg', and a large body of water labeled 'Swarte Gat'.
